

PRELIMINARY FEASIBILITY ANALYSIS

CAPITAL LINK

Connecting Health Centers to Capital Resources

Capital Link can provide an outside, expert evaluation of the feasibility of the project .

Capital projects can be expensive, time-consuming and intimidating. The goal of Capital Link's Preliminary Feasibility Analysis (PFA) is to help health center management and boards minimize anxiety by considering all the relevant pre-planning details.

The PFA provides information on:

- The center's financial trends as compared to Capital Link benchmark data
- The center's financial strength as a lender might evaluate it
- The center's debt capacity and need for grant funding to undertake the capital project
- Typical project costs for the type of project under consideration
- Possible grant and debt funding sources for the project
- Recommended next steps for moving the project ahead in a structured and timely fashion
